

The University of Nevada, Las Vegas invites applications for a Lee Professorship of Supply Chain Management, Assistant/Associate Professor (16280).

PROFILE of the UNIVERSITY, SCHOOL and DEPARTMENT

UNLV is a doctoral degree-granting institution of approximately 29,000 students and more than 3,000 faculty and staff that is classified by the Carnegie Foundation for the Advancement of Teaching as a research university with high research activity. UNLV offers a broad range of respected academic programs and is on a path to join the top tier of national public research universities. The university is committed to recruiting and retaining top students and faculty, educating the region's diversified population and workforce, driving economic activity through increased research and community partnerships, and creating an academic health center for Southern Nevada that includes the launch of a new UNLV School of Medicine. UNLV is located on a 332-acre main campus and two satellite campuses in Southern Nevada. For more information, visit us on line at: <http://www.unlv.edu>

Las Vegas provides a largely untapped research setting for many types of business research. Las Vegas hosts over 41 million tourists, accommodates over 22,000 conventions and is home to fifteen of the world's 25 largest hotels. As the only research university in Las Vegas, UNLV has unique access to these world-class organizations. This access would be particularly valuable to the right strategy, supply chain and/or service operations researcher.

The position is housed within the AACSB accredited Lee Business School. Home to approximately 4,000 students, including 500 graduate students and 85 faculty, the Lee Business School offers five masters degree programs, including an Executive MBA, and nine undergraduate degree programs.

The Department of Marketing and International Business (MIB) provides a professional orientation to education with coursework emphasizing both the theory and the practice of marketing, supply chain management and international business. The department fosters relationships that focus on enhanced ties between students, faculty, alumni and the business community. The MIB department comprises 12 full-time faculty members, one full-time support staff member and five graduate assistants. There are approximately 200 undergraduates in the marketing program and 70 undergraduates in the international business program. There is a Marketing concentration in the MBA program.

ROLE of the POSITION

The UNLV Department of Marketing and International Business (MIB) invites applications for one Lee Professor of Supply Chain Management at the Assistant or Associate Professor rank. Based on qualifications, the successful applicant will be hired either with tenure or on tenure track. This position involves teaching undergraduate and graduate-level courses in Supply Chain and/or Services Operations as well as involvement in executive education and professional certificate programs.

Requirements of the positions also include conducting significant research leading to high-quality refereed publications and performing service activities for the department, school, university and profession.

LEE PROFESSORSHIPS

In 2012, the Lee family pledged a $15 million naming gift for the Lee Business School. Part of that gift includes the endowment of ten Lee Scholar professorships across the business school, including these positions. In addition to solid research, these Lee Professorships ideally will help build our graduate online education and executive education offerings in Strategy, Supply Chain or Services Operations.

QUALIFICATIONS

Candidates must have a strong academic record with demonstrated excellence in both research and teaching. A doctoral degree from an AACSB-accredited school is required. Preference will be given to candidates with demonstrated excellence in online education and/or executive education.

SALARY RANGE

The salary for these positions is competitive with those at similarly situated institutions. The Lee Professorship designation for these positions provides additional support in the form of summer stipends and additional travel/research funds.

Position is contingent upon funding.

APPLICATION DETAILS

Please submit a letter of interest, a detailed resume listing qualifications and experience. Also include the names, addresses, and telephone numbers of at least three professional references who may be contacted. Applicants should fully describe their qualifications and experience, with specific reference to the job description. Michael Mejza, Michael.mejza@unlv.edu, is chairing the search.

The review of materials will begin immediately and will continue until the position is filled. Application packets must be submitted via the online application portal at <https://hrsearch.unlv.edu>.
