SMU’s Cox School of Business invites applications for a full-time Clinical faculty position, at the level of Clinical Professor in Information Technology and Operations Management (ITOM). The ideal candidate must possess strong quantitative/analytical skills and a Ph.D. in operations management or a related field. Teaching expertise in areas such as supply chain management, service operations and operations analytics would be especially valuable for this position. The ITOM Department offers courses in the School's BBA, MBA, MS and EMBA programs. The position begins Spring 2022.

The Cox School is a nationally ranked business school located in Dallas, Texas, the premier business center in the US Southwest. The ITOM department has a well-respected research faculty and excellent relations with the corporate and business community, providing a unique and exciting environment for high-quality research. The School offers a collegial working environment, generous faculty support and outstanding facilities. The Dallas Fort-Worth (DFW) Metroplex offers a thriving business community in one of the fastest-growing regions of the country, a relatively low cost of living and myriad cultural and recreational activities and resources. Information about the School can be found at http://www.smu.edu/cox.

Priority will be given to applications received by September 30, 2021, although the search committee will continue to accept applications until the position is filled. Hiring is contingent upon the satisfactory completion of a background check. Applications must be submitted electronically to: https://apply.interfolio.com/94636x
