Assistant Professor or Associate Professor of Production Management

National Sun Yat-sen University – College of Management

Location: Kaohsiung, Taiwan
Salary: US$32,315 – US$40,649 (Assistant Professor); US$34,913 – US$44,791 (Associate Professor) per annum
Hours: Full Time
Contract Type: Tenure-track or Renewable Contract
Closes: June 30, 2021

We are seeking to appoint an excellent academic with an international research profile with experience of teaching in management-related disciplines. You will join the dynamic College of Management, which is currently pursuing a wide-ranging internationalization strategy. You will be teaching within the undergraduate International Business program as well as within the International Business MBA (IB MBA) and the Global Human Resource Management MBA (GHR MBA) programs.

You will have:
- A proven track record of research and teaching in production management or a closely related field
- Evidence of peer-reviewed publications in SSCI-indexed journals
- Good interpersonal communication skills
- Ability to work under conditions of autonomy as well as a commitment to teamwork

We expect applicants at the Assistant Professor level to have PhD degrees from research-intensive universities and to exhibit evidence of high-quality research and teaching. Applicants at the Associate Professor level should have published numerous articles in relevant peer-reviewed journals and should have substantial experience of teaching within higher education institutions.

Appointees are expected to apply for research grants from the Ministry of Science and Technology (Taiwan), which are associated with salary supplements of US$6,000 per year, in addition to support for research assistants, conference participation, and other expenditures that are directly related to specific research projects. The University and the College may award substantial salary supplements of US$4,000–US$12,000 per year for up to three years to newly hired academics with a strong and consistent track record of peer-reviewed publications. The compensation package includes comprehensive health insurance and pension benefits.

We will invite shortlisted candidates to on-campus or video interviews.
