

The Department of Marketing at Missouri State University seeks to fill a position at the clinical assistant professor level, beginning 1/5/2026; an 8/10/2026 start date will be considered. Primary teaching responsibilities will include undergraduate and/or graduate courses such as Supply Chain/Logistics/Operations Management. May be asked to teach MKT courses such as Operations Management, Purchasing and Supply Management, Business Process Management, Purchasing and Supply Management, Introduction to Logistics, Supply Chain Management and Logistics, and Supply Chain Management & Sustainability, among others, as needed. Teaching assignments will include seated, blended, and/or online classes. Provide service to the Department of Marketing, College of Business, Missouri State University, the local/regional community, and the profession.

Candidates for the clinical assistant professor position should hold a Master of Business Administration (MBA) or Master of Science (MS) degree with an emphasis in Supply Chain/Logistics/Operations Management or a related discipline from an AACSB-accredited institution with 18-graduate credit hours in Supply Chain/Logistics/Operations Management or a related discipline and have 7+ years of professional supply chain management experience ending at a supervisory/executive level. Demonstrated college teaching experience and experience with college students and student organizations as an advisor are required. Candidates will also support the success of the student organization in the supply chain discipline, namely, the Logistics and Supply Chain Management Association (LSCMA). The ability to work with and develop working relationships with colleagues and students is a must.

Employment will require a criminal background check at the university's expense.
